

Journal of Clinical Pathology

The Journal of the Association of Clinical Pathologists

Vol. 28, No. 1, January 1975

Left Pseudohyphae C. albicans on 0.1% glucose agar showing clusters of blastospores (large arrows); and a terminal chlamydospore (small arrow); right Pseudohyphae of C. pseudotropicalis on 0.1% glucose agar consist of lines of elongated cells with ovoid blastospores (arrows) lying alongside. See figs 4 and 6, page 21.